Space and Place: The Perspective of Experience As part of my reading around the topic of Space to Place for Assignment #3 I came across this paper. The issue of what makes a Space a Place is not a simple one, although it can be simplified, it is discussed by Tuan from the perspective of experience and the senses. Below are some bullet points I have captured from the essay:

Senses of Space and Place In the simplest sense place refers to either a location somewhere or to the occupation of that location. The first sense is of having an address and the second is about living at that address. Sometimes this distinction is pushed further to separate the physical place from the phenomenal space in which the place is located.

the important distinction of space and place. 'Space' is used to denote an abstract, distant perspective, for example a scientific analysis, a bird's eye view, or a modern map reducing space to a manageable, two-dimensional relationship which can give the sense (or illusion) of control.

Space, Place and Identities

Perspective is an art technique for creating an illusion of three-dimensions (depth and space) on a two-dimensional (flat) surface. Perspective is what makes a painting seem to have form, distance, and look "real." The same rules of perspective apply to all subjects, whether it's a landscape, seascape, still life, interior scene, portrait, or figure painting.
